The F.C.H.S. Marching Band adds another honor to its already impressive list by being selected to take part in the Inaugural festivities.

Secretary of Agriculture, Orville Freeman, announces an important expansion in the Food Stamp Program in an address to the students of Falls Church.

1969 . . . a year of events . . . the excitement of an election year . . . guests speakers from the political world—Secretary of Agriculture Freeman, Congressman Dorn . . . the growing controversy over drugs and the thought-provoking seminars held on the matter. Poet and recipient of the National Book Award, William Stafford came to share his ideas with Falls Church students. Epidemics of a diverse nature swept through the school—the heralded Hong Kong Flu and the spring gambling fever that hit the Senior Lounge.

All the incidents of 1969, of great or small import, whether or not they proved to be enjoyable or informative to the student, were a welcome break from routine.

Melinda,

It's been a real fun year in H.R. Have Poet, William Stafford, engages in scholarly debate with students.

Absentee lists swelled as the flu made its inroads at F.C.H.S. and students delightedly spread rumors that the school would be closed.

HONG KONG FLU

Hong Kong Flu, an entirely new strain of A flu virus, is now hitting many parts of the country and is expected to be epidemic by mid-winter.

New administrators and teachers combine efforts with seasoned faculty to make the envisioned year a success . . . thought-provoking computer problems . . . stimulating discussions . . . newly ignited interest in the humanities . . . planetarium facilities for stimulating student interest in astronomy and contemporary space activity.

F.C.H.S. Operates Smoothly Under The Administration's

Attending county planning meetings, maintaining the building, bussing students, planning assemblies, evaluating teachers, were the myriad duties assumed by our administrators whose work was vital to the smooth operation of the school.

Although Mr. Todd was by no means a newcomer to the administration, many students still didn't quite understand exactly what his function was in operating the school. As Head Principal he acted as a liason between Falls Church High School and the county school board and was always present to unravel whatever problems, whether related to academics, extra-curricular activities, or athletics, which occurred on the local scene.

Mr. Joseph King, an educator who has taught in Germany as well as the United States, joined the administrative staff as Assistant Principal for Instruction. As well as assuming the duties of reviewing textbooks, distributing supplies, and evaluating teachers, he took part in assemblies and spoke at the October induction program of the National Honor Society.

In his position as Assistant Principal for Administration, Mr. Marion Martin found each day filled with new and unexpected duties and responsibilities. While he sat in his office surrounded by volumes of rules on county policy and piles of memos on the school budget, he constantly received telephone calls about new needs but he was always ready to deal with any situation.

One could find Mr. John Shultz, Aide to the Assistant Principals, checking attendance, regulating bussing, or discussing problems with freshmen or sophomores.

Day by day, throughout the school year, the administrators pursued their numerous duties, always willing and never too busy to assist the demanding students.

Mr. Todd receives the Ecuadorian flag from foreign-exchange student, Nancy Menendez.

"And then she asks to be put in a boys gym class!" chuckles Mr. Flannagan.

"I hate to tell you this", says Mrs. Spring, "but this application was due three months ago".

Transcripts, old records, new records, college representatives, schedule changes, giggling girls, phone calls, perturbed parents, tireless counselors, college catalogues, complaining students, cluttered bulletin boards frustrated teachers . . . the Guidance Office at F. C. H. S.

Constantly cluttered with students, teachers counselors, and parents, the Guidance Office was one of the busiest places in the school. All the students were relieved to know that whenever some class didn't completely suit them or their schedules were a complete mess, they were able to come into the office and make an appointment with their counselors and work out their problems regardless of what they were.

Seniors, who were planning on attending college, were able to come into the Guidance Office, where they made use of the college catalogue room. There they could find practically any school which they were interested in and find out about its requirements and standards.

Many of the students within the school were plagued by many problems other than those of schedule changes, mixed-up classes, and college choices. However, special help was provided for them through the participation in group discussions which many of the guidance counselors held besides taking care of their already monstrous duties.

Innovation and Tradition Direct English Department Action

Provoke, beseech, cajole!

Although the English faculty used different tactics to present the subject, they shared the problem of drawing the students from their shells and teaching them to express their thoughts and ideas.

An appreciation of functional grammar, poetry, and literature was the reward for those students who strived toward their goal of free thought and expression.

Not only were the topics diverse but so were the English classes themselves. For the first time, the teaching of English was inter-related with social studies. The seniors received instruction in Chaucer, philosophy, government and abstract thinking while select juniors were caught up in an English-history struggle which strived to develop an appreciation of the American culture. Due to last year's success Project 9, was continued through this year along with the addition of Project 10.

Public speaking, creative writing journalism were just a few of the English-oriented electives, that along with the rest of the department courses dealt with the same problem of getting students to say what's on their mind either by the oral word or on paper.

Mrs. Freeman suppresses her mirth over a senior's oral presentation on Shakespearean comedy.

Foreign Language Students Enlarge Sphere of Knowledge

"Donkey Shane is not the correct German pronunciation of thank you," kindly explains Mrs. Welk.

Humming tape recorders, colorful travel posters of unfamiliar places, the buzz of repeated phrases, flags of many nations—these sights and sounds became familiar to foreign language students.

While first year students struggled their way through the first lines of dialogues and basic stories, students on the second level practiced grammatical constructions and learned about the cultures of the countries whose languages they were studying. Advanced classes attempted to solve puzzling mystery stories, worked on translations of works of famous authors and became more fluent through conversations about such subjects as existentialism, mountain climbing or transcendentalism.

No matter what methods of instruction were used, the students had a clearer picture of the countries whose languages they had studied.

Presidential elections, geography bingo, the philosophical theory of government and the analysis of the rise and fall of the various dynasties exemplify a small segment of the topics studied in the Social Studies Department. Coordination of social studies with English for select juniors and seniors furthered the presentation of various topics pertinent to an understanding of the past and present of man.

While flustered freshmen located the principal cities of India, perplexed juniors pondered over the intricate checks and balances specified by the Constitution. The seniors learned about the theory and the institution of the American government, while other individuals frantically memorized the reasons for the decline of the Roman Empire.

Movies depicting numerous contrasts of nationalities throughout the world brought students closer to the foreign countries, cultures and civilizations which they studied.

Field trips to Woodlawn Plantation, the Pan American Union and other government buildings in Washington D.C. were effective provisions of "first hand" information as well as welcome breaks from classroom routine.

Whether in a world geography class or a U.S. government class, the F.C.H.S. students gained knowledge of the contrasts in today's society which necessitate universal study and understanding.

Math Dept. Prepares Students for Future

Triangles, cubes squares, radii, , trapezoids, quadratic equations, logarithms, imaginary numbers, pencils, gops of paper, millions of erasers, graphs, rulers, compasses, protractors, chalk screeching, pencil sharpeners grinding, and books slamming—such were the sights, sounds, memories, and frustrations of those students who engaged in the courses given by our Mathematics Department.

Many types of math and as many different methods of learning were offered by the faculty of the Mathematics Department. For the struggling student, the department offered general math, and two part courses of instruction in basic Algebra. For the advanced math students, courses in Algebra 1, Algebra 2, and Trigonometry, Geometry, Elementary Mathematical Analysis and Calculus, were offered.

The world of numbers and formulas is a complex yet essential aspect of contemporary society, and the aspiring Falls Church High School mathematician, after having received instruction in its intricate wonders was well prepared to continue his explorations in a computerized future.

"What was the question?," inquires Mrs. Carlsen.

Science Dept. Enlarges With Addition of Planetarium

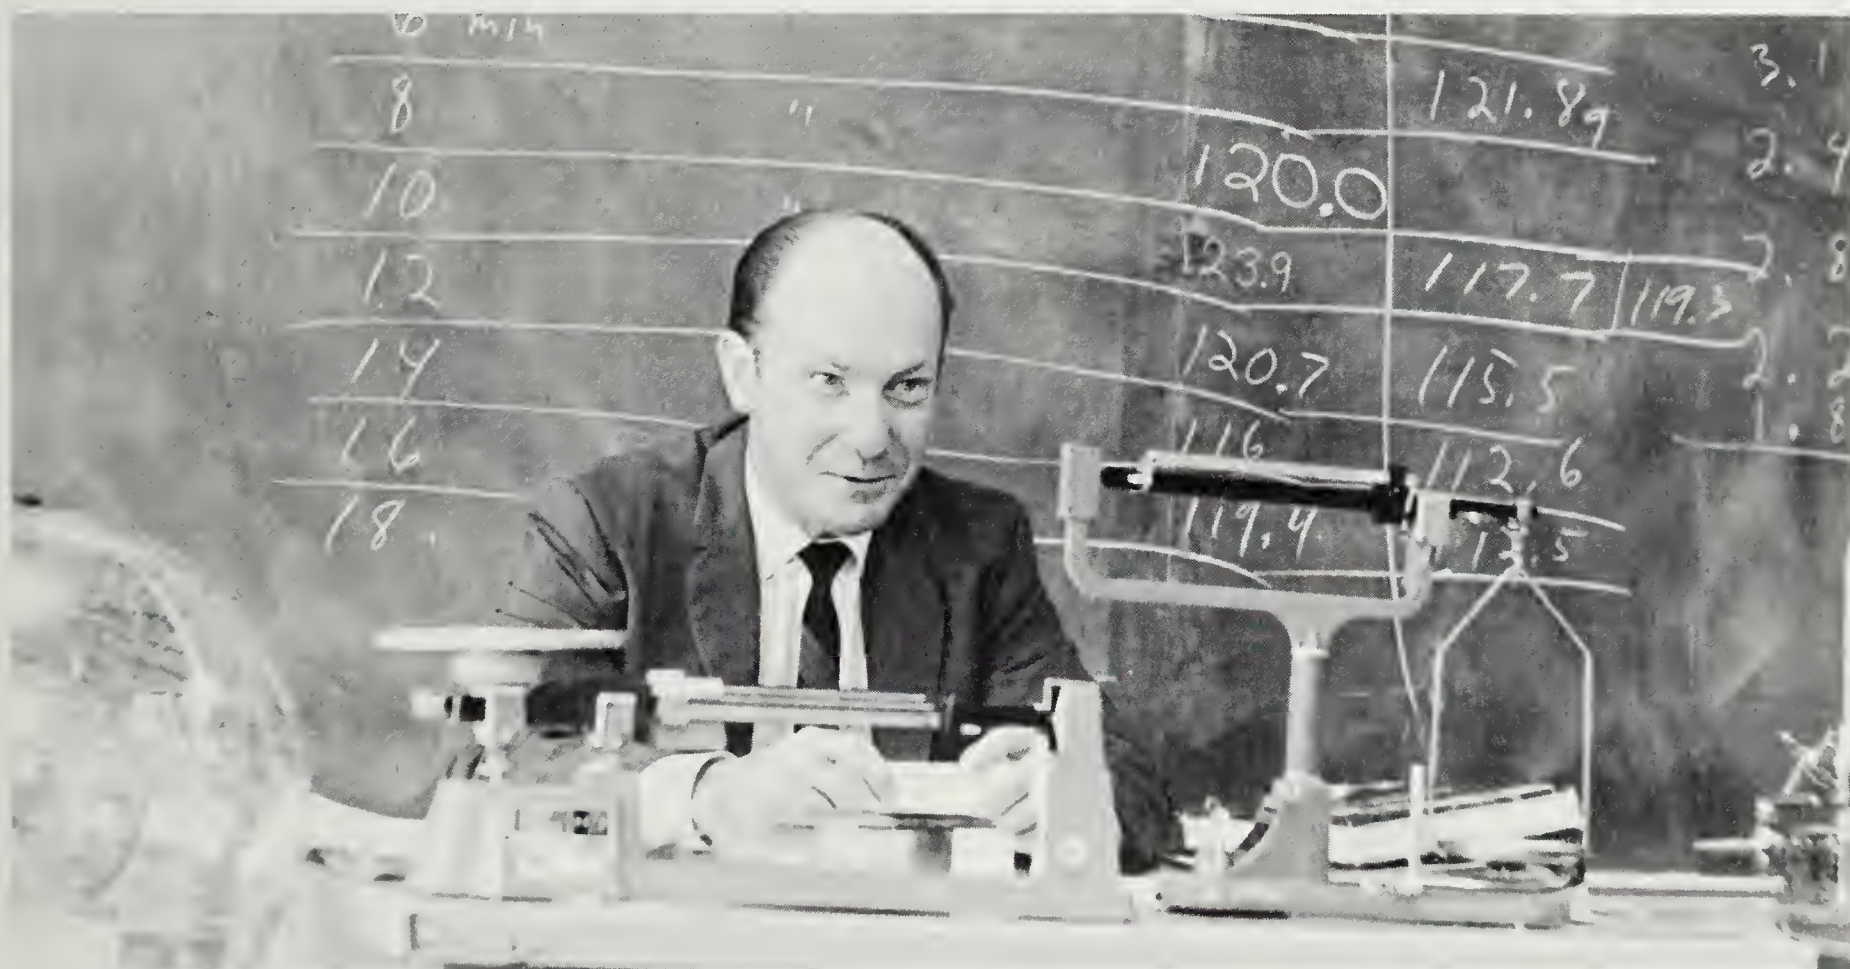

Expeditions through the woods, star-gazing, step-by-step instructions on frog dissection, candle watching—the mere mention of these scientific endeavors brings many fond memories to anyone who has ever taken science and the students of Falls Church High School are no exception.

Mysterious, foul-smelling brews; pink-eyed rabbits, volcanic eruptions, were just a few of the everyday occurrences experienced throughout the science wing.

Plush couches, blue skies, a silver moon, a fading sun, and innumerable stars, were all a part of the newest edition to the science wing, the planetarium. With all the latest equipment, the planetarium introduced another facet to the scientific study pursued in the F.C.H.S. Science Department.

Students Prepared for World of Business

Crumbled paper, broken pencil points, newly cut finger nail, the clatter of type writers, and waste baskets crammed to the brim—in a word—the Business Department.

Scrambling through timed writings, taking frantic dictations, etching out hieroglyphics in a journal, and adding 2 & 2 by computer, were just a few of the many problems that confronted the business student as he desperately tried to keep up with the unlimited skill building courses offered him.

Typing I, bookkeeping, V.O.T., shorthand, and I.C.T., were part of the varied courses of professional subjects offered to all the students in order that they be adequately prepared to meet the demands of the complex world of business.

In accordance with the department's attempt to prepare the students for business, vocational office training and manual training were offered to interested students. In these programs the students attended regular morning classes at school and in the afternoon was responsible for working on a job, connected with his line of business study. Either directly on the job or in the classroom, the students involved in the business courses acquired a clearer perspective of their positions in the working world.

Physical Education Department Activates Students

A gardener, a traveler, and an artist were just a few of the people, who, united by a common love of sports, taught physical education at Falls Church High School.

Learning the fundamentals of baseball, gaining knowledge of traffic rules, dribbling, basketball, studying the parts of the brain, memorizing wrestling holds, all this kept the boys who participated in the P.E. program in a constant whirl.

In addition to traditional activities, significant changes were noted throughout the department.

Banged-up knees, Ben-Gay, and band-aids galore were just a few of the boys' mixed reactions to the addition of soccer to the curriculum. Although very few of the boys knew much of the game they eagerly tackled the sport as if it were another opponent worthy of being conquered.

The ladies taught the fundamentals of football with lively touch football games on the front lawn. At first rather skeptical, the girls soon discovered the strange magic of the game which had long attracted the boys.

Not primarily concerned with building muscles, the girls saw further action on the tennis courts, developed grace and poise through modern dance and analyzed personality problems.

All in all, the gym department did a great job of stimulating the competitive spirit of the students and teaching them the value of sports.

F.C.H.S. Strives for Expression Through Fine Arts

Clay globs, uniquely designed statues; newspaper stacks, pieced together portraits; daydreams, thoughts expressed in oils and water colors; glassy bits intricately assembled, a beautiful mosaic. These were the things which made up the activity in Falls Church High School's Art Department. Students' creative talents were sparked and developed by, not only, their actual work with art techniques, but also, by their study of art, great artists, and new artistic methods. Developing style and learning to understand the affect which the art work of yesterday had on today's art work, required more time and concentration.

A few blocks and a couple of turns from the Art Department, alongside the gym lobby is where Falls Church High School's Music Department was located. From every nook and corner of the closed-off department were heard the melodious voices of the choral students. The instrumentalist perfected their performances on either the percussion or the wood wind instruments. Frequently could be heard the blue notes of a saxophone or the bass tones of the tuba, while in the background the sopranos and tenors blended with the bass and alto. Whether a lively rhythm from the band or a lovely ballad from one of the choral groups, music frequently lifted the Jaguar spirit.

Home Ec. and Industrial Arts Students Develop Skills

1 cup butter, $\frac{1}{2}$ cup milk, 3 beaten eggs—a luscious cake. Dusted furniture, washed dishes, vacuumed rugs—a well kept home. A dab of powder, a touch of lipstick, a speck of eyeshadow—an almost perfect beauty. Those girls who participate in the Home Economic Department's curriculum received instruction in a variety of domestic interests and personal care. There were also fashion shows, parties, teas, baby showers, child care sessions, and a host of other activities for improving each girl's ability as a hostess, a homemaker, and a future parent.

While the girls learned how to keep a home bright and cheerful, the guys learned how to fix, to repair, and to build all types of necessary home and business fixtures in industrial arts class. The art of bricklaying, the techniques of woodcraft and the intricacies of metal work were the major things taught in the shops, while the repairing of automobiles, the replacing of tubes and transitors, and the mastering of precise architectural drawing were taught in maintenance, electronics, and mechanical drawing classes.

Completed projects, made up of wooden salt shakers, book shelves, radios, smooth running car engines, and small model houses, gave evidence of the many industrial, electrical and mechanical abilities, which the boys learned.

Staff Proves Helpful For Smooth Administration

In the bustle of F.C.H.S. the administrators and faculty often found difficulty assuming the jobs of detailed paper work, finances, and health care; so the responsibility of these vital duties, fell onto the strong and able shoulders of the secretaries, the special teachers, and the school nurse.

Members of the office staff were busy in the I.B.M. room, other school offices and the book store, checking attendance, processing students' report cards and aiding the librarians and counselors. In the clinic, the nurse was ready to receive ailing students or to aid the P.E. Department in checking general health.

The members of these essential staffs were not unlike the strong foundation of a building — the direct effects of their work were not often seen but you knew it was there.

The Library Offers New Surroundings for Concentration

Simple, plain-faced, unadorned, a room pervaded by a Spartan atmosphere with naught but shelves and shelves of books and filing cabinets standing like granite-colored slabs among hard comfortless straight-backed chairs . . . the usual student impression of the library. But this somber image no longer holds true at Falls Church High!

A cluster of bright, deep-cushioned chairs set around a rich-grained table invite visitors to the library to relax in the recreational reading corner. The windows are framed with cheery, orange-tinted drapes and even the drab filing cabinets have been spiced with color. Pictures, travel posters, and captivating displays of books further catch the eye. Not only was there a brand new decor but there was also a new look on the shelves too with the addition of new career books and the constitutions and by-laws of every state for government students.

Cafeteria and Janitorial Staffs Keep School Functioning

Ovens baking, dishwashers washing, refrigerators slamming, garbage grinders grinding, soup, potatoes and corn steaming, beef and spaghetti sizzling, and the aroma of bread baking. These were the sights, sounds and smells which drifted from the F.C.H.S. cafeteria. The busy smiling ladies of the cafeteria staff worked constantly and diligently to prepare nutritious meals for the healthy Jaguar student body, and the ravenous appetites which daily besieged the school's lunchroom were ample proof of the students appreciation of the staff's efforts.

Working along with the cafeteria staff in maintaining the appearance of the cafeteria and the rest of the school were the custodians and the other members of the maintenance crew. Jammed lockers, spilled milk, broken windows, littered hallways, and broken chairs were the few, among many, things which the custodians were called upon to fix or to clean-up. Although they may have occasionally grimaced, they were always ready when the intercom beeped.

Only one more lunch shift to go!

"Showers Of Memories" Welcome Alumni To A Sparkling And Enchanting Homecoming '68.

Time, diligence, and an abundance of work went into the preparations for F.C.H.S.'s Homecoming Weekend, October 11.

A mysterious queen, a skunk, a fabulous marching band, a shoe, a victorious Jaguar team, and a jolly whale were symbolic of the multitude of events the night of the Homecoming game against the Jefferson Colonials.

Bright splashes of color, imaginative ideas, forest creatures, and a pond half hidden by trees, all artistically and very cleverly woven together into a wall mural, the focal point of the Homecoming Dance. Silvery cellophane rain enveloped the queen's throne and accentuated the dance's theme. "A Shower of Memories."

Intoxicated by the previous night's win, the couples danced and celebrated in rhythm to the reverberating sound of the Village Squires.

Couples backed by a huge mural, create a world of fantasy.

The nurse, portrayed by Mary Conway, prepares to reveal Medea's plot to murder her own children.

The wailing women bemoan the tragedy of Medea.

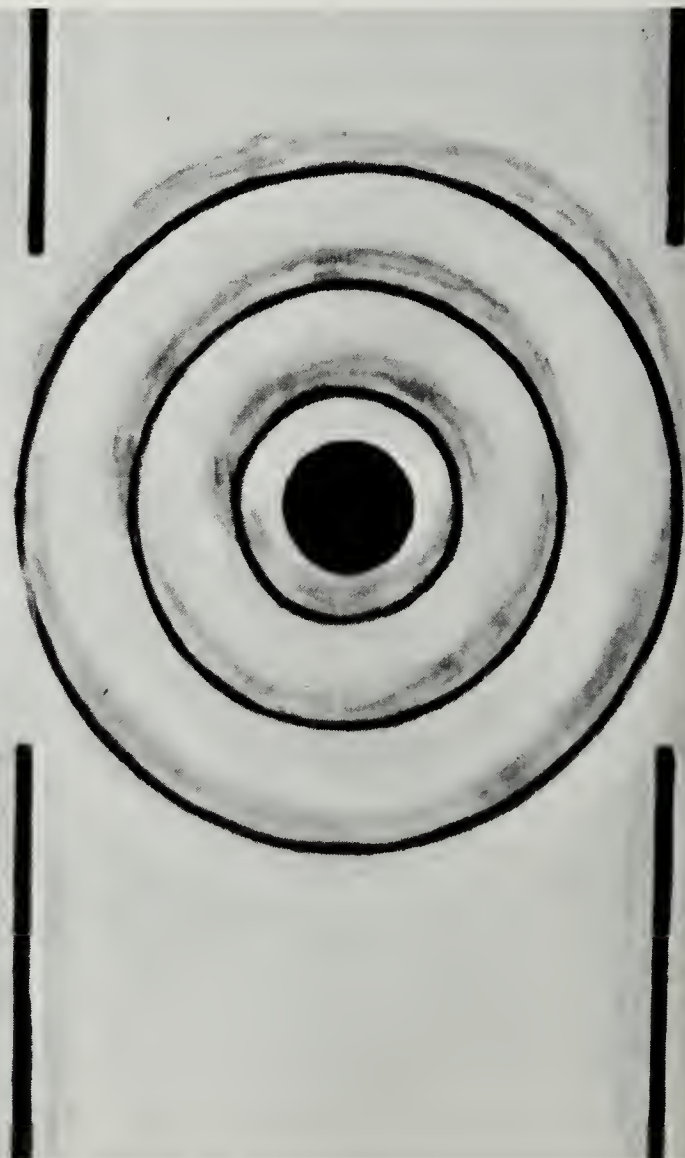

Medea Is Avenged In Greek Tragedy

A single figure of a woman stood beside the brilliant blood-red walls of her palace. Girls dressed in Greek garb were frozen like statues in a striking pose against a pattern of stark pillars and an open sky of the same crimson hue.

It was over—Medea had won. Those who had dared to go against her had met a violent death or were doomed to a miserable existence.

Euripides powerful Greek tragedy, Medea won him third prize in the annual drama festival in Athens in 431 B.C. Mr. Allen, drama coach at F.C.H.A., said he felt students should learn to understand and appreciate the classical style of drama.

Because all the action of the drama takes place off-stage, major actors need a great flexibility of voice to keep the play moving and a chorus of women give a commentary and an explanation of the story. This type of a drama demands of the actor exaggerated speech and movements but a feeling of depth and dignity.

Ya-hoo! let's go get them girls . . . Sadie Hawkins Day at Falls Church High School. Pappy Yokum, Mammy Yokum, Cave Gal, Marrin' Sam, Little Abner, Daisy Mae, polka dots, hillbilly boots, leopard skin; our Sadie Hawkins Day characters. After the members of the Senior Class nominated those who would be their representatives in the Sadie Hawkins Day festivities, there was the annual grubbing for pennies, nickles, dimes, and quarters to satisfy the appetite of the shiny, gaily decorated cans and bottles. When the final count was taken the characters were chosen and on the 27th day of November, 1968 many a happy couple were joined in pseudom matrimony at the annual Sadie Hawkins Dance in the cafeteria. The music was great and invigorating; the kids' costumes and corsages were magnificent and had just the right air for the occasion. All in all the dance turned out to be a celebrated affair.

Exotic dancers in colorful native costumes . . . an attractive singer accompanied by a piano . . . displays of twirling batons and flashing pom-poms . . . swinging combos . . . a pretty girl dressed in a stunning evening gown . . . laugh-provoking comedy acts-all set against a kaleidoscopic background of flashing lights and fantastic psychedelic projections . . . Does this sound like any program presented on a high school stage? Maybe not, but all these acts were part of the Art Club's annual Variety Show presentation.

Each year the Club and the Art Department spend hours preparing for the show-making varieties of unusual posters to catch the eye, advertising inside and outside the school, and organizing the hour-and-a-half long program. The money raised from the presentation allowed the Art Department to make their annual art scholarship award.

The audience seemed to enjoy the program and everyone agreed that the little four-year-old hula dancer stole the show!

Visions of Grandeur Prompt Thirty-five to Compete for the Miss Falls Church Title

Thirty-five girls . . . all poised, all graceful, all attractive, yet each possessing a charm unlike any other. Willowy blondes, petite brunettes, vivacious redheads, all gathered to vie for the title of Miss Falls Church High.

Even though the contest was delayed a week due to snow, the theme was far from wintry . . . Colorful, spring-fresh, "Look at the Rainbow."

Nervous, excited, hopeful; each emotion in turn broke away from the other, and for the few precious moments it takes to stroll down a runway, basked in the praise, applause, and awe only to be abruptly brought back to reality by the bombardment of questions from the judges. The long wait . . . the tension . . . the announcement . . . Miss Falls Church High.

State government is of importance to every student at Falls Church High School. For some, however, the opportunity to gain knowledge in this area became an actual "living-learning" process when, as rising seniors, select members of the Class of '69 were chosen to attend the Virginia Girls' and Boys' State and the D.C. Girls' State. The delegates to these conferences were given the opportunity, not only to work and to learn through the election of their own "state" officials and the developing of their own "state" governments but to meet numerous students from the state of Virginia and the District of Columbia.

Other outstanding members of the Class of '69 were recognized for their quick minds and exact answers, which were the characteristics present in the F.C.H.S. It's Academic Team. Joined by a common reserve of intelligence and knowledge in the areas of the humanities, sciences, and math, the individuals formed a cooperative team who proved themselves effective under the strain of competition.

Dangling snowflakes, nervous court members, blue polar lights, and a glistening snow tunnel very aptly describe the 1969 Sweetheart Dance.

In the school handbook the Sweetheart Dance is simply described as the third and final semi-formal dance of the year, but due to the combined efforts of freshmen through seniors, this S.C.A.-sponsored dance proved to be much more.

Dressed in galoshes, aprons, crazy hats, dresses that had been stored in a grandmother's attic for the past 30 years. Carrying brooms, baby bottles, shopping bags and umbrellas, members of the Key and Keyette Clubs convened in the gym lobby on the morning of February 27th, Maid and Butler Day at Falls Church High School. After getting all their gear together, the maids and butlers and their masters set off for a day of fun and games and occasional feats of servitude—a day which often included singing in the halls, sweeping out a desk, and fibbing to teachers. All proceeds from the "sale of servants" went to the March of Dimes, and all of the Key Clubbers and Keyettes headed home, exhausted but happy they had contributed.

Jr.-Sr. Game: Seniors Are Best?

Cheers, sweat, sore muscles, and a good time were the products of our annual Junior-Senior Game which was held on March 15. The event was active with the pranks, foul ups, and horsing around, not common to season basket-ball games. The guys on the squad were cheered by girls who were volunteer cheerleaders for a night. Although funfilled, the game was a slight disappointment to the mighty Senior squad as well as to the Senior Class, that as tradition has it, usually wins the Junior-Senior Game with no questions asked.

Maybe you had heard Mom rave about Nelson Eddie as the handsome singing mountie. Collaborating, the Music and Drama Departments provided the opportunity to see the "Eddie Style" revived with dashing young mounties coming to the rescue of the heroine, fierce, threatening savages, a sinful maid—all brought to the FCHS stage in a spoof of the sugary-sweet musical, Little Mary Sunshine. Innocent Little Mary romped through comic songs while the young ladies from Eastchester Finishing School mingled with mountie friends. Tension mounted when the naive heroine was caught in tight spots, but Captain Jim was ready, and able to rescue her from the clutches of Yellow Feather. There were sad moments, too, when the leader of the mounties and Mary had to part, but of course she got her man at last. After all, doesn't the "Eddie style" require the happy ending?

Bella Manningham was left sobbing hysterically as her husband Jack was dragged away by Inspector Rough and the British police. Bella had endured a night which became "the most wonderful night" during her life in the house on Angel Street.

The story had really begun fifteen years before when under another identity, Mr. Manningham had come to the house on Angel Street and had murdered his old aunt for her precious jewels.

Theater-in-the-round was the Drama Club's approach to their presentation of the suspenseful melodrama Angel Street. The gripping drama reached its high point when Inspector Rough recognized Manningham as the nephew of the murdered woman and when Bella tried to grasp the seemingly fantastic tale he told about her dangerous position. Together the shocked Bella and Rough solved the mystery of Jack's continuing search for the gems.

“Cherished Years” Come To A Close At The Jr.-Senior Prom.

Fifteen spirited, pretty girls who had done more than their part in making the Senior Class a glorious one for all presided over this year's tribute to the upper classmen. The “Cherished Years,” theme of the 1969 Prom commemorated four years of hard work and fun. The Junior-Senior Prom was the highlight of the year for the seniors, a culmination of not-soon-to-be-forgotten memories. It was a climax of a different sort for the Juniors— it meant the end of a long drive to raise money for the gala event. Bakesales, paper drives, sockhops, and a host of other fund-raising activities came to an end on May 31st. The result of their labors? A treasured climax for the senior's “Cherished Years”

New SCA Committee Is Established

The Student Cooperative Association in Falls Church High School was spurred by the leadership of President Don Ricks. Along with the sponsorship of student social activities, the S.C.A. carried out work which began during the summer to prepare the student handbook, to plan the orientation for the freshmen and new students, and to hang student codes in each of the classrooms.

To handle special problems of the S.C.A. various committees were set up. Among this mass of committees was the Magazine Drive Committee which took care of the distribution, publicity, and problems which the school's largest money-making project created. Another committee which was established to give those students who felt the need for reconsideration on procedure for various school activities was the Solidarity Committee. This committee was effective and gave everyone who felt he was on the outside a chance to be "in" and participate in school functions.

SCA Committee Proposes

The Student Cooperative Association at Falls Church High School was spurred by the intelligent leadership of S.C.A. President Don Ricks.

Along with sponsoring student social activities the S.C.A. carried out many other tasks. Work began during the summer to prepare the student handbook, to plan orientation for the freshmen and other new students. The responses to questionnaires received provided an important means for consideration of the majority's ideas and reactions.

Although the main body of the S.C.A. was quite active, it was impossible for it to cope with the numerous activities and problems brought about by both students and faculty. To handle these special problems, various committees were organized. Among the mass of committees was the Magazine Drive Committee, which took care of the publicity and distribution problems which the school's largest money-making project created. Another committee which was established to give students an opportunity to express themselves was the Solidarity Committee. Through combined effort, student participation prevailed.

The light from the flames of the myriad candles illuminated the serious faces of the inductees into the National and Junior National Honor Society. In the impressive service each student held a small candle lit from the large white Candle of Scholarship and recited the pledge to uphold the standards of the Society and promote interest in the search for knowledge.

Although maintaining a 3.2 average was of prime importance, students were also chosen for their outstanding character, honor, leadership, and service rendered to the school and they continued to develop these qualities through participation in the societies. Members contributed their time to such school services as the operation of the book store and collection of money in the Spring Easter Seal Drive. Perhaps the most important project was the program of tutoring which Honor Society members gave to aid students in any subject.

Honor Societies Recognize Outstanding Students In Areas Of French, Spanish, Drama, And Publications

The Quill & Scroll, Thespian, French and Spanish Honor Societies, whose purpose is to honor outstanding students and promote interest in the fields of journalism, drama, and language, planned interesting projects to supplement classroom learning.

While the French Honor Society was planning their annual trip to a French restaurant, the Spanish Honor Society members took part in oratory contests. Later in the year both groups took part in International Week.

The Quill & Scroll Honor Society, which chose its members because of their exemplary work on the school's publications, aided the school with the printing of a student directory and the Seniors' "Last Will and Testament."

Thespians, the parent organization of the Drama Club, counted competition in the state Thespian contest as their biggest project.

Although predominantly for the purpose of acknowledging outstanding student achievement, the honor societies contributed something worthwhile to the array of student activities.

Deadlines Create Yearbook Tensions

Typing, editing, writing, rewriting, cropping, pictures, screaming, jumping, yelling—a small room known as Yearbook Headquarters. The members of the Jaguar staff were diligent, and always seemed to get their particular jobs done on time, though there was usually some mix-up and the entire job had to be done all over again, from the very beginning. Frustration was the word, when the staff advisor realized that a deadline was only two weeks away and one of the editors had not even begun to plan or draw his layouts. Exhausted brains and word power were the torments of the copy staff, who worked at the last minute to write or edit some copy which was either too lengthy or far, far too brief. Felicity was the word when the members of the staff realized they had successfully completed one deadline and still maintained their mental faculties and nerves, so that they could make the biggest deadline, the final one. The staff had great hopes for the yearbook, and went through all types of torture to see that it became one of their best.

Jaguar Journal Staff Keeps Students Informed

Take miles of strewn paper, frantic trips to the printers, ever-pressing deadlines and neurotic editors; then mix well. The finished product: the Jaguar Journal, Falls Church High School's bi-monthly paper.

Sparked by the great increase in circulation, due to its membership in the newly formed block system, the Journal grew and grew. It added more columnists, artists, and editors, enough, in fact, to form two complete editorial staffs. Even with the extra help, editors, typists, cartoonists, reporters were kept on a constant whirl as the J.J. ambitiously attempted to create a new and everchanging paper twice a month, every month.

Paw Print Recognizes Outstanding Student Literature

Maria Gurri checks the want-ads after learning her poem has been rejected.

As a "paw print" represents the presence of some animal to a hunter, Falls Church High School's literary magazine Paw Print by name represented the spirit of creativity of the student body to the connoisseur of literature and art.

Throughout the year budding authors stretched their imaginations to fabricate creative stories, poems, and essays while future artists created pictures to catch the eye.

These unusual creations were compiled into the magazine which was published two times in a year.

Ever-changing in content and presentation, Paw Print stood for highest talent in the fields of art and literature.

The supervision of Mrs. Martin eased the problems involved.

Kaden Kats Honor Special Days

Those Kaden Kats were up to their tricks again as they added their own imaginative touch to change the usual routine activities into something special . . . distributing prizes on Kaden Kat Day . . . giving out lucky shamrocks near St. Patrick's Day . . . selling candy on Kaden Kupid Day.

While striving to develop initiative, leadership and high ideals characteristic of useful citizenship, the Kadens enjoyed success and a feeling of accomplishment with each endeavor.

Sock-hops, bake sales and candy sales were several other money-making projects for these active girls. When not occupied with fund raising, they found time to decorate athletes lockers and check coats at games.

Keyettes Continue To Support Migrant Workers

Keyette Sue Yonushonis offers Miss Carroza a Valentine Day treat.

Supporting a foreign orphan, saving pennies for convention, visiting the old folk's home, collecting for the March of Dimes and keeping the identity of one's secret pal, secret. These are just a few of the diverse, wide-ranging activities synonomous with Keyettes.

Their motto of "We Serve" was viewed daily as the girls struggled through shoe-shine day, doughnut sales, Maid and Butler day, bake sales to earn money for migrant workers, UNICEF, March of Dimes, and other worthy causes. Being of service to the school and community was an important part of being a Keyette, but certainly not everything. Slumber parties, picnics, secret pals, camp-outs, skits, and Convention were characteristic of the more lighter moments in the hectic world of a Falls Church Keyette.

Peggy Farrell and Jane Slinkard show signs of the shoe shine blues.

Starlytes Visit St. Vincent's Orphanage

Swinging into their second year of service, the Starlytes strove faithfully to aid the school and community. When not concentrating on money-raising projects, this active group of girls gave much time to visiting soldiers at De Witt Hospital, planning enjoyable activities for the children at St. Vincent's Orphanage, collecting for UNICEF and ALSAC. Included in the busy schedule for the year was participation in all school-oriented projects—such as the Annual Canned Food Drive, Pride Week activities, and Christmas festivities. Counting Seniors, Juniors, Sophomores, and even Freshmen girls in its membership the Starlyte Club truly enabled all girls to donate their talents, abilities and spirit for their fellowman to worthy causes through the organized projects of a service group.

"Hidden Flames" Are Introduced To Torch And Banner Activities

Among the many service clubs at F.C.H.S. could be found the Torch and Banner Club, or as it is commonly called, TABS. This group of girls like all of the other service clubs, were very busy helping out in the school as well as in the community. Among the many things which they did were included the collection for UNICEF, the sponsorship of bake sales and other fund-raising activities to give money to the March of Dimes. Often, however, the members just had a good time. In previous years the TABS had expressed a hope of having "secret friends" to exchange gifts with in the club. So this year, not long before their spring induction, they instigated "hidden flames" into their club's array of activities.

Civitans Resume Fun And Service

The male gender at Falls Church High School has several clubs which belong to them alone, and among these is a group known as the Civitans. These guys, who usually tend to be on the light-headed, not-so-serious-side, have been quite busy this year and although there were the usual pranks, they really accomplished a lot. Whether they were collecting for UNICEF, the March of Dimes, or perhaps selling something now and then. Busy, energetic, and not too quiet was enough to describe their entire year of fun and action.

National Convention

No task seemed unsurmountable—no service was too unimportant—no project lacking in interest for the Key Clubbers who (often with the friendly assistance of the sister club, the Keyettes) enthusiastically met and accomplished worthwhile service projects. Time not devoted to studies was filled with multitudinous activities from the beginning to the end of the school year: Hundreds of books were untiringly stamped to make school's first day run smoothly . . . Pride Week, the Partners of Alliance program, Safety Week, all were made a success due to the contributions of the Key Club. Christmas card and Valentine boxes and mail delivery services were provided by the holiday-spirited Key Clubbers. Many boys became "domestics for a dime a day" as they submitted themselves to drudgery and humiliation for the amusement of their "masters" but more important, to collect for the March of Dimes.

High points of the prosperous year were the winning of second place in the Homecoming Float competition, a very successful October sock-hop (co-sponsored by the Keyettes), and the annual convention in Richmond.

AFS Sends Americans Abroad

The countries and the nationalities of the world are separated by acres of land and by miles of water. Such a massive geographical division between people of various nations makes it difficult to realize how we could ever really get to know and appreciate one another. One of the functions of the American Field Service is to provide a personal exchange of ideas between the culture and civilization of other countries, through the exchange of high school students. These students come to the United States and are placed in various high schools throughout the country. Our foreign exchange student this year was Nancy Menendez from Ecuador. She was a smiling blackhaired pixie-like girl whose vivacious smile lessened the distance between Falls Church Virginia and Ecuador.

At the annual A. F. S. assembly held during the month of October members of the Falls Church student body met an American exchange student from Japan and heard from our own exchange student, Cindy Kleinfeld, who attended school in Brazil for three months during the summer.

Known for their spirit and general sportsmanship, F.C.H.S. Jaguars maintained this spirit in the daily routines. Many students were so keenly interested in the life of their school that various spirit clubs, such as, the Joy Boys, the Pep Club, and the Cheerleading Association were formed to promote student response and participation. The Joy Boys is a club established to give the male population a chance to show their own personal enthusiasm while sitting together at all of the school's athletic events.

Their counter-part, the Pep Club, sponsored activities such as selling numerous gadgets for students to wear in order to display their school pride.

The cheerleaders, who were the focal point of spirit at Falls Church High, also banded together to decorate the team member's lockers, give the boys cakes and candy and make every effort to inject the victory-mood in the entire student body.

Skills

Be it foreign countries, sports, chess, or astronomy, Falls Church has a special interest club for every imaginable hobby. Three of the many clubs opened to the Falls Church student body were the Swim Club, GAA, and the Rifle Club. The Rifle Club took on a new dimension as it added riflery instruction for beginners. The more experienced marksman contested for places on the rifle team which participated in competition.

The Girls Athletic Association or GAA as it is more commonly called, served as a type of "Pep Club" for girls sports. Hockey, tennis, track these sports and others were as varied as the personalities of the members who ranged from frosh to senior, tall to short, boisterous to shy but who were all united by a common interest in sports. Countless laps around the pool, interschool competition, were part of the weekly routine carried out by the Swim Club at Starlite pool. Each organization shared the role of fulfilling the individual sportsman interests of its members.

Germany is known for its interest in space research as well as in other sciences. Students at F.C.H.S. are also interested in the sciences as well as in the language of German. To give those students who had a special interest in such subjects the opportunity to expand their interest, the Astronomy, German, and Science Clubs were established.

The Astronomy Club, which came into existence only this year, with the opening of our new planetarium, assists students in their study of the stars and constellations. Although a new club, the membership is large and many students had the opportunity to enjoy the wonders of star gazing.

The Science Club, an older club at the school, gave those students who had a greater interest in biology, chemistry, or physics, a chance to explore more complex interests. Even though its membership was small, the club was rather active, and often sponsored open meetings, which were usually made more interesting by a well-informed speaker.

FCHS Students Explore

Forceful speakers, aspiring actors, those endowed with a talent for creating from oils and water colors, the shutter-bug experimenting with a variety of lenses. These were the people who joined the Drama, Debate Art or Photo Clubs. These clubs were formed with the idea of giving those interested people a chance to explore their own personal talents.

The Debate Club's members were also the members of Falls Church High's Debate Team which debated against other schools on the desirability of a compulsory service system.

Shakespeare, melodrama, modern satire, and other forms of drama were the torments and dreams of the members of the Drama Club who often performed on the F.C.H.S. stage. Under the careful guidance of their drama coach, members learned their lines and tried to the best of their ability to master the characters they were portraying.

Those students who had a special interest or talent for drawing or painting, became members of the Art Club. They sponsored trips to art galleries, gave a variety show and awarded the outstanding art student with a scholarship.

The newly formed Photo Club provided the camera fanatics with a convenient chance to click their shutters to their hearts' content.

New Businessmen

In an effort to prepare students for the world of business Falls Church High School's business Department created three clubs to meet with the needs of students interested in business careers.

Industrial Cooperative Training was opened to all students who were at least 16 years old, and who intended to work half a day. Members learned skills connected mainly with laboratory assignments and jobs using manual equipment.

Although concerned more with learning to manage accounts and applying secretarial skills, the F.B.L.A. was still very much a business oriented club. The club sponsored the Miss Falls Church Beauty Contest in which the members utilized some of their newly gained skills to make the contest a success.

Still another club was started by students involved in the Distributive Education program. Like the I.C.T. course members of D.E. attended school in the morning and worked afternoons, the only difference being that D.E. members were trained more for secretarial and sales positions.

Students Devote Time to Future Goals

Three unusual school organizations—the Future Teachers of America, the Future Homemakers of America and the Youth for Christ—effectively prepared students for careers in the home or in professions and for further understanding and appreciation of religion for the future, while providing unique experiences and fulfillment of spiritual needs during the high school session.

The clubs were characterized by their interest in personal relationships (whether the friendship was on the club or community level) and their participants enthusiasm in rendering useful services to the school and community. Their concern for the welfare of others was well rewarded when members of these groups enjoyed speakers, movies, picnics, discussions with members from other schools or a special Father-Daughter Banquet.

Although these organizations were smaller than many others they were among the most interesting and active.

Students Assist In Library, Clinic And Store

Notebook paper, rulers, lost books, new books, pencils, pens . . . book fines, card catalogues, library passes, book filing . . . aspirin, bandages, clinic passes, emergencies—these were the frustrating nightmares of the members of the school store, library and clinic staffs.

With such numerous jobs and responsibilities to perform, the librarians, the nurse, and the finance officer, were pleased and relieved to have volunteering students come in during their free periods and work with them. Many of the students who helped in the school store, the library, and the clinic became so interested in the type of work they assisted with, that they seriously considered pursuing the career of either librarian, nurse, or secretary.

Members of the Guidance and Office staffs were among the busiest students in the school. They worked during every spare moment running errands and performing duties which allowed the administrators and guidance counselors more time for their important functions in the school. They answered the constantly ringing telephones, operated the duplicating machine, delivered messages to all ends of the building, and typed a variety of memos and bulletins. Free time for these busy students was at a premium as they gave their time to help the Guidance and Main Offices function smoothly.

Falls Church High Band is Chosen to Play for President Nixon

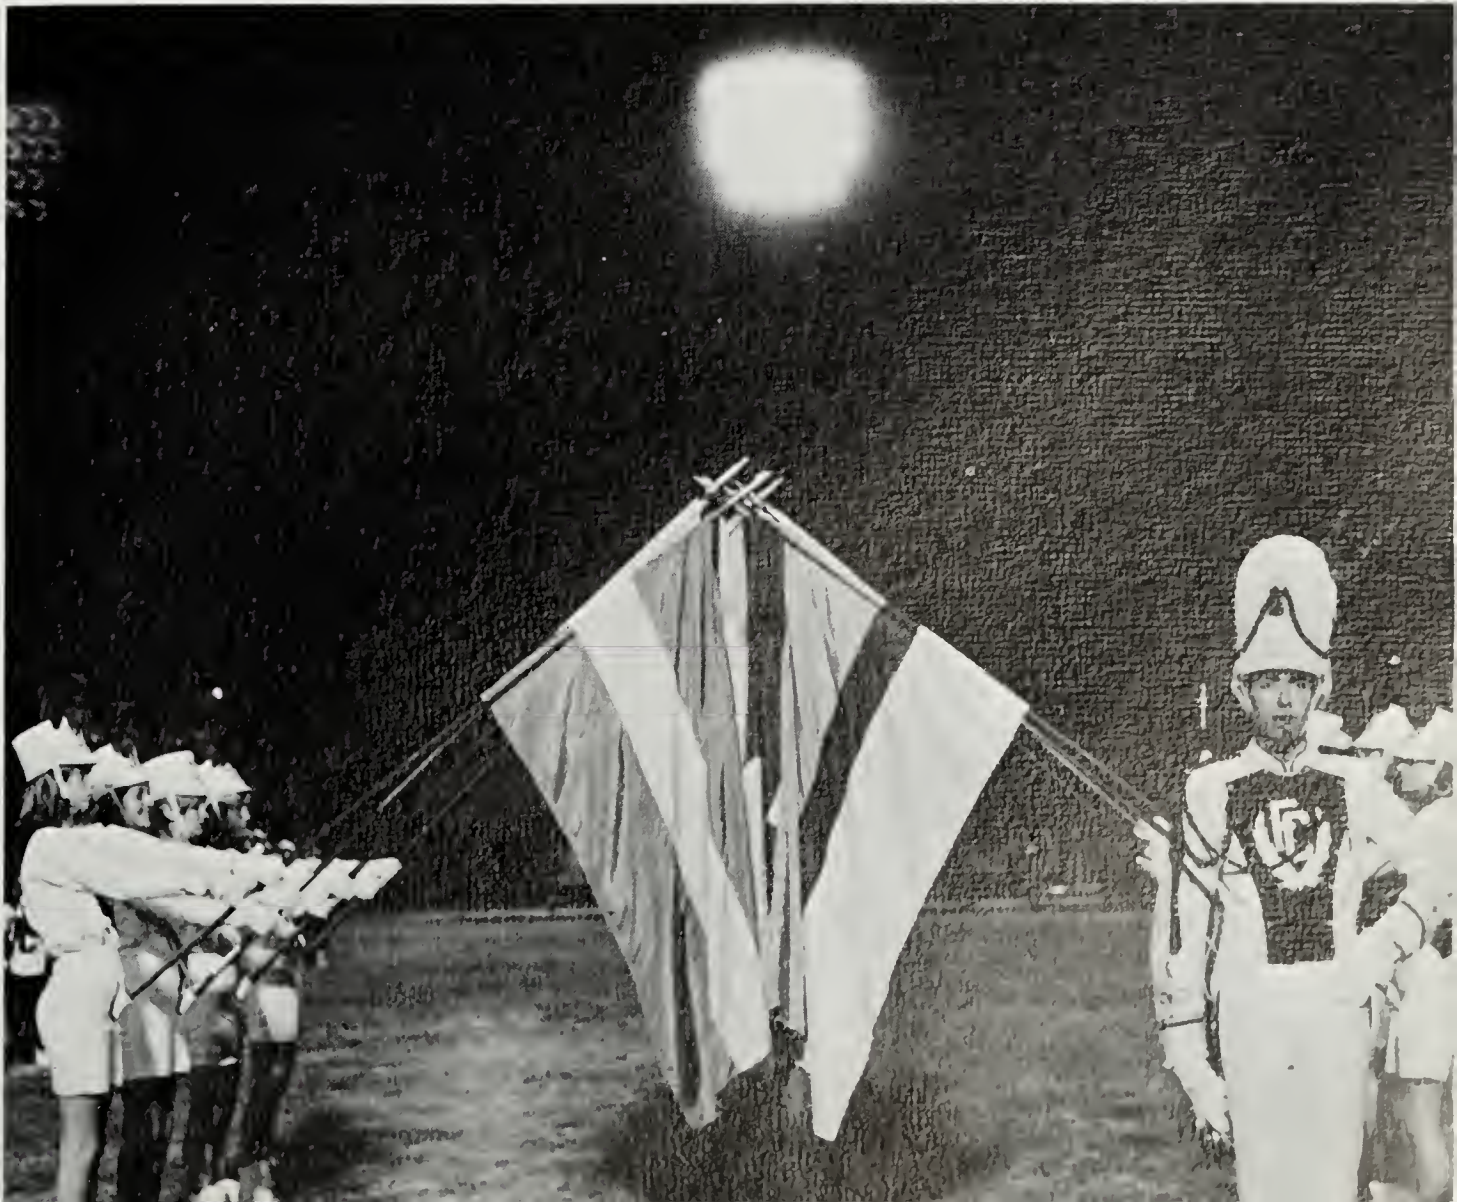

Soloist Tom Richeson never seems to run out of things to toot.

Falls Church High School's band under the conscientious direction of Mr. Lunsford, continued its usual fabulous record of perfection performances.

Constant practices, drills, marches, section rehearsals, heavy instruments, neatly pressed uniforms . . . the band working toward gold-medal presentations. Along with their normal routine of performances and stage shows, the band took part in an array of outside musical activities. Among the many outside competitions, which the band took part in were the Parade of Champions, the District Festival, and the Disneyland Band Contest. In the Disneyland Band Contest, F.C.H.S. received the honor of rating among the top 21 bands out of some 300 which came from throughout the United States. These recognitions were in no way insignificant, but to the band, their greatest accomplishment was an invitation to march in the Inaugural Parade. A three hour stand in frigid January weather did not affect their extraordinary marching ability which was praised in a personally signed letter from the newly inaugurated President, Richard M. Nixon.

Angels we see on high consist of the Girl's Chorus.

Sparked and excited by a new director, the participants in the choral music program worked for polished performances and derived their own pleasures from the music.

Members of the Madrigals sang the traditional English madrigal songs along with many new melodies which Director Holloway introduced to them. These experienced songsters brought the joy of music to the ill and infirm in local hospitals and homes and made numerous other public appearances during the year.

The A Capella Choir composed only of girls did their share of out-of-school singing too. Their cherub-like voices were often heard resounding through the music wing and during the holidays their caroling spread throughout the entire school.

The Concert Choir and the Girls Chorus, traditional singing groups at Falls Church High were joined by a new group, the Men's Glee Club. The husky voices of these young men were a delightful asset to the Choral Department's already varied program.

Highlights of the Department's year were the Christmas concert and the spring musical Little Mary Sunshine, a spoof on the old romantic musicals of the early part of the century.

Woodson Upset Highlights Season

Yells, fumbles, touchdowns, glee, expectation and disappointment—the grim but often happy world of a football coach and his team.

The development of a team is rugged, and the toughness of the sport never ceases. There is practice and more practice, scrimmage after scrimmage, and muscular ache after muscular ache. The F.C.H.S. Varsity Team endured all these problems to the tune of "Stick 'em" which meant "once you've got 'em down, keep 'em down and once you've got the ball, keep it and get across that line."

Football is a competitive sport and when played against another team the joy of knowing you performed your best and won and the disappointment of knowing you did your best but lost are all parts of the competition. Our team played zealously this year, and were not disappointed with the 5-4-1 record which tied with the school's record of two years ago.

To any coach, the condition, both physical and mental, of his boys is his prime concern, and Coach Sell's concern was no different. The knowledge that his players were in great physical shape, left only the worry of getting them in shape psychologically. To do this he tried all sorts of gimmicks, many which necessitated cooperation of the student body.

Led by their captain Mike Ball and co-captain Mike Lee, the team was generally in great spirit and always fought their hardest.

The thrill of victory, the anguish of defeat, the frustration of a tie, and the ecstatic feeling that only winning a championship can give, Falls Church High's Junior Varsity encountered all of these emotions throughout their season.

Laboring through practices or battling other schools, the J.V. was in every sense of the word a team. No longer merely substitutes for gaps in the Varsity, they proved themselves winners as they came out No. 1 in the district with a 6-1-1 record.

Although the J.V. lost their opening game to Marshall which was their first, last and only loss. The game against McLean was the only mark against their winning record which earned them the Northern District Championship.

Freshman Continue Winning Ways: End Up 5-1

The awesome rush of Ron Crum, Jim Fitts, Mike Hyatt, and Kurt Nordstrom strikes fear into the opposing quarterback.

Torn and bruised muscles, hard work, whirlpool sessions, mutual respect, and a desire to win were rewarded by a winning season for the baby Jags.

Struggling through conditioning exercises, memorizing plays, and learning to operate as a single unit made all the difference in the world, as shown by the 5-1 record.

The frosh easily proved to Annandale what defeat meant as they smashed the Atoms 20-6. The Highlanders suffered a similar fate. Although the freshmen suffered a defeat at the hands of the freshmen team of the Woodson Cavaliers, they survived and went on to defeat the Jefferson Colonials and the Fairfax Rebels. Not lacking in strength and drive after such strenuous, hard fought victories, the 'baby Jags wrapped up the season with a final victory over the Stuart Raiders.

Although their hard fought games and splendid record won them no material possessions, the whole team won the priceless joy of united team spirit in winning and losing.

Juniors Gain Needed Experience

Led by returning letter men Barry Parks, Tom Collins and Alan Kendall, the Jags started on the rebuilding trail. Junior sharpshooter Kendall contributed heavily to the relatively inexperienced team. Relying on promising young juniors, Coach Warren gave opponents a mild taste of what to expect in the future.

Jim Flather and Co-Captain Dave Oliver, both up from the Junior Varsity squad, showed definite poise in playing every quarter of every game. At one time or another during the year seven juniors played on the starting five. With all this experience under their belts the Jags will be a definite contender in the Northern Region when the 1970 season commences.

Stars Created Despite Loosing Mark Of 5—13

Tom Denny pumps one in from the top of the key.

The road to success in professional sports lies in the success and expansion of a pro team’s “farm system”. All pro teams have a system by which they can draw young promising players into the big time.

So it is even in the high school ranks. The Junior Varsity is one step from the Varsity. It is here where the player receives much of his experience in the fundamentals of basketball. Hopefully the player will be developed enough to move on to the Varsity squad.

This year the J.V. team was led by the big six foot, six pivot man, Dave Masterpolo. Having improved immensely under Coach Matalavage, he, along with other squad members, will fill a slot in the Varsity squad in future years.

Baby Jags Past Winning Mark

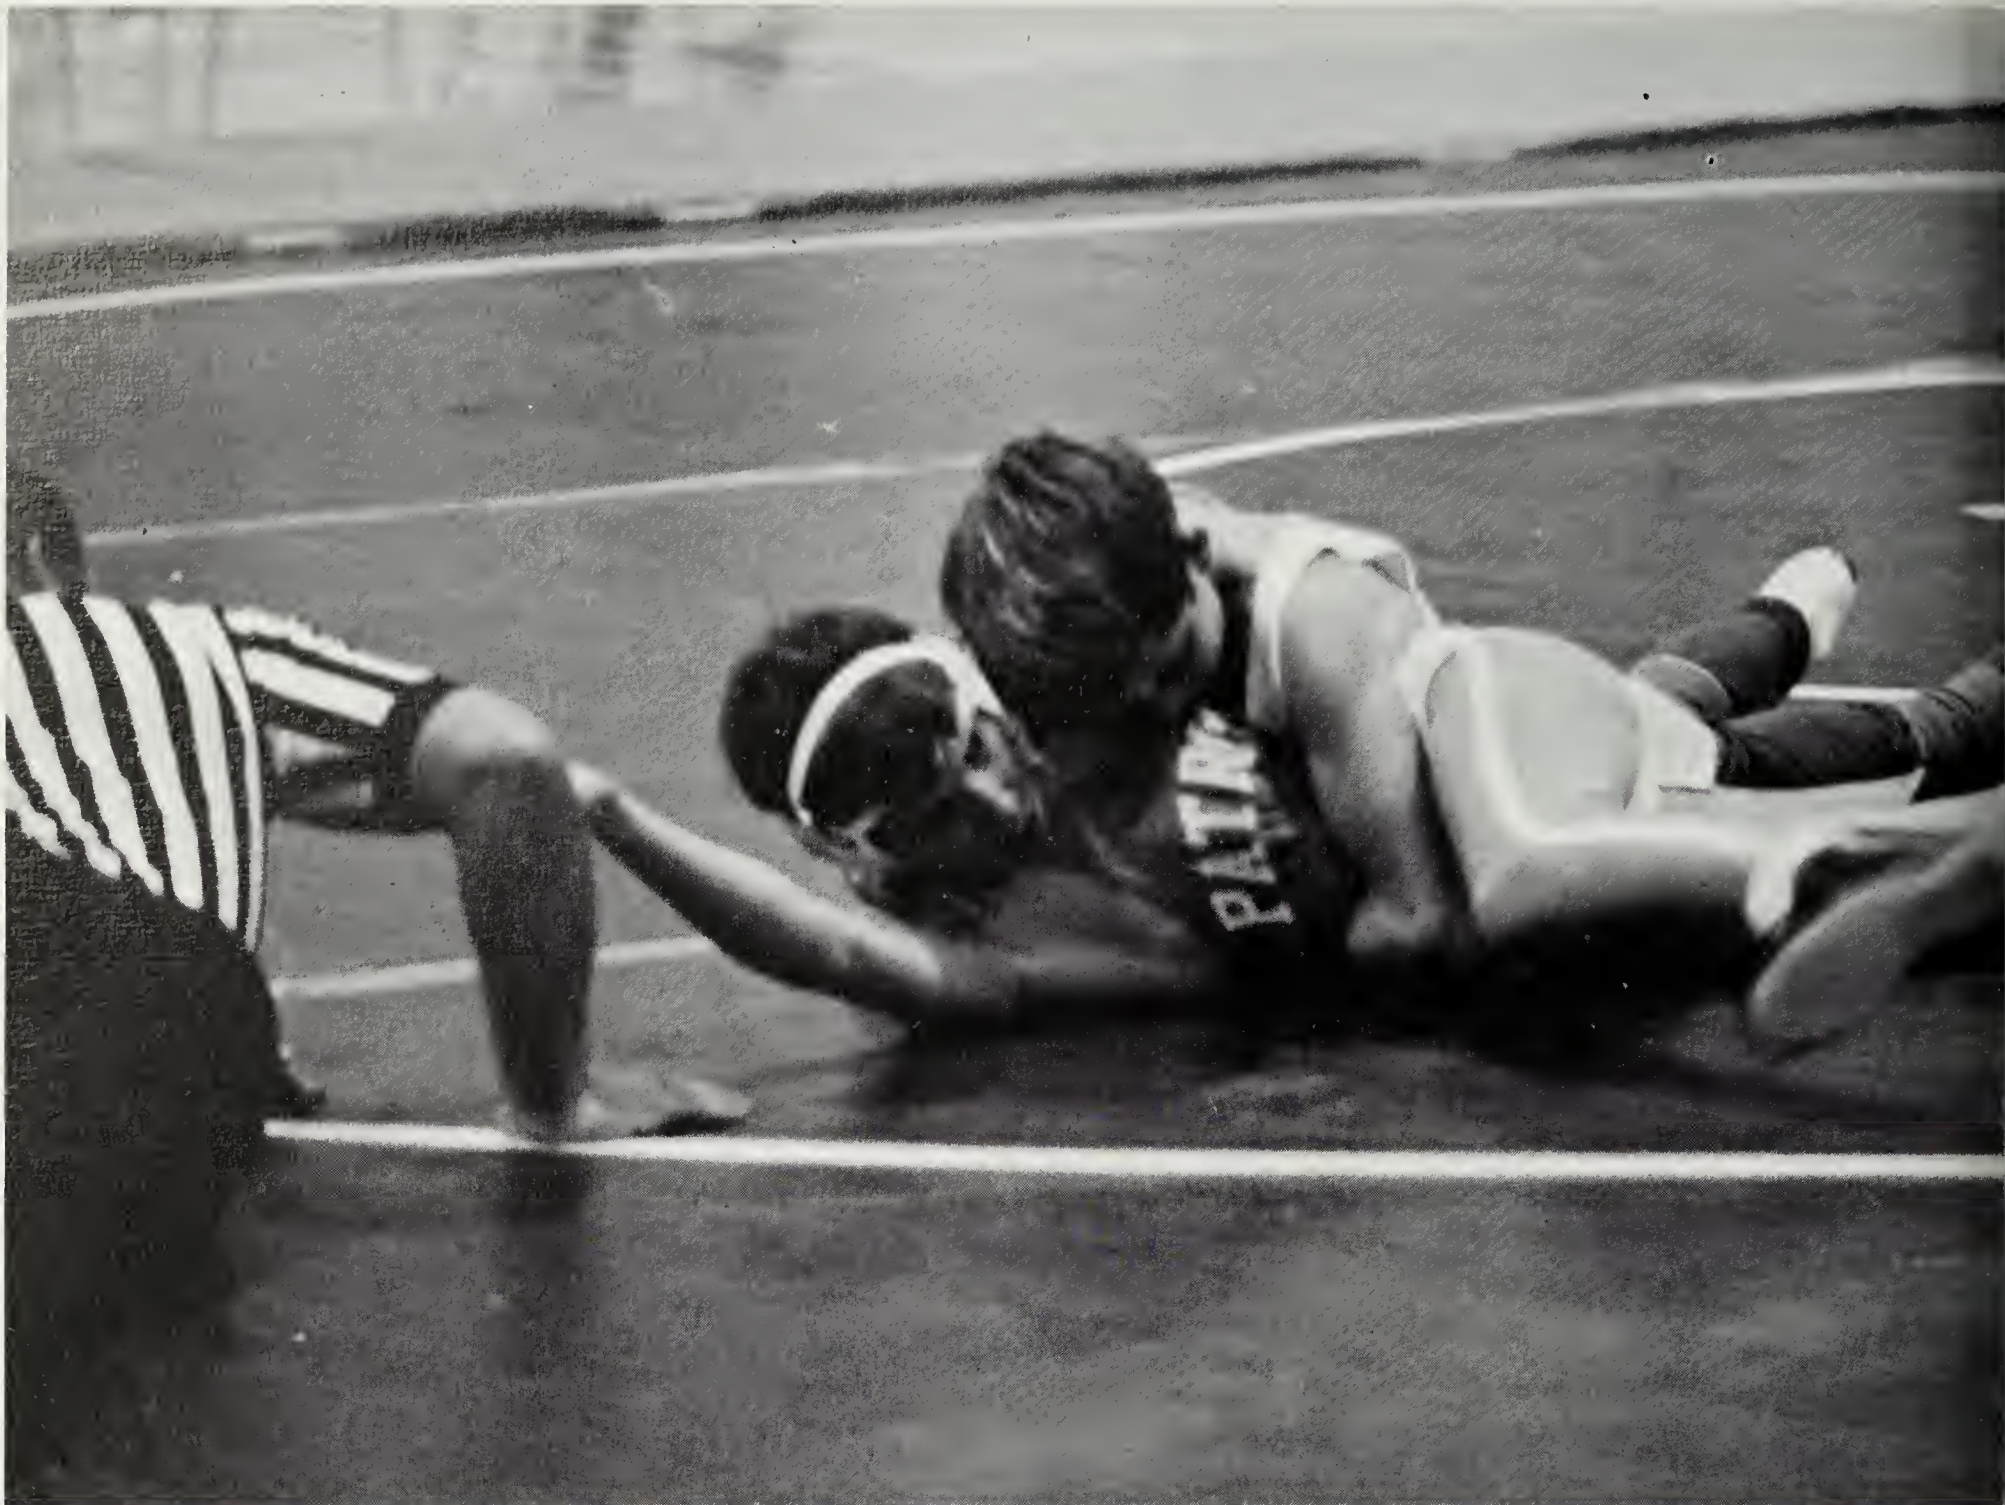

The Freshmen this year fought successfully for a winning record under the direction of Coach Bennett. The frosh played fewer games than the Varsity and Junior Varsity—a factor which made each game more important and caused increased pressure on the boys. It is here that the players are familiarized with the game of basketball. The team gets use to the wood floors and glass backboards, quite different from the asphalt and metal on the outside courts. The team learns the actual meaning of team, when one player is little without the other four. Passing, dribbling, shooting, and rebounding were practiced continually with the hope of someday advancing to Varsity status.

"Jaguar Power" prevailed again this year as the Varsity Falls Church matmen ran up another winning mark of 8-2. Despite the loss of fine starters, Coach Dick manipulated the line-up in order to continue his winning habits. Co-Captains Mike Lee and Barry Anderson contributed 19 wins between them, Lee finishing with an unblemished record.

Junior Varsity Strengthens Team With Freshmen

Freshmen wrestlers were a relatively unfamiliar sight among the Junior Varsity wrestling squads of the past years. This year, however, through the promotion of several coaches and the interest of many incoming frosh, a minor league team for the J.V. was formed, consisting solely of freshmen. Though the team isn't officially recognized by the county, it proved to be a definite asset to the Falls Church wrestling system.

Jaguars: A Northern District Threat

Grueling practices, worry over an unfinished field, skinned-up elbows from sliding into third base—these were just a few of the many gripes common to any baseball team, in this case the Jaguar Varsity and J.V. baseball squads.

Lanky first basemen, fast-moving outfielders, determined pitchers, united, ready-to-attack the oncoming season. Grand slams, pop-ups, double plays, full count in the ninth, the guys took everything in stride—the victories, the defeats, the frustration, the excitement. This undying spirit and determination led both squads into successful seasons.

A tremendous swing by Mike Spencer connects for extra bases.

Track Team Strives For Winning Season

Constant training, after school practices, drilling, and running, and more runnings were the things which plagued the members of the Cross Country and Track Teams. There was never enough time or amount of running that could be done, and there was the concrete challenge of trying to get ahead of the guy in front of you, whether it was your teammate at a practice or your opponent at nerve racking track meets. The constant working and practice paid off because the Cross-Country team had a great season and the track team efforts were awarded by as good, if not a greater, season.

Golf And Tennis Develop Agility And Coordination.

As Spring rounded the bend, athletes' minds drifted to thoughts of tied tennis matches under the warm, beating sun . . . long drives down the fairway toward the golf green . . . new strategic tactics and difficult shots . . . exciting "holes in one" . . . Although still relatively new to the sports schedule of F.C.H.S. and not as widely publicized as the season's baseball team, golf and tennis produced skill and enthusiasm in each birdie, bogie smash, or ace of the games.

Besides differing from the other spring sports in the many obvious aspects of play, tennis and golf involve skill rather than brute strength—small size was no barrier (to possible team membership). Not only did the two sports give team members a chance to become the school's "star athletes", but they promised enjoyment for the boys in the future in that these are activities one can carry through all the adult life.

Varsity Has First Winning Season In A Decade

Pat Agnelli and an opponent fight for possession fo the ball.

Ranging from 4'11" to 6'½", 28 blondes, brunettes, and redheads banded together to form the Varsity and Junior Varsity hockey squads.

Struggling through drills, trying to survive windsprints, raising each other's spirits, and learning to play as one instead of eleven brought surprising results.

Out to prove that their previous record of 0-7-1 was ancient history, the Varsity defeated Annandale, last year's district champs, 1-0, in the first game of the season. The girls had their ups and downs but ended the year with a 3-4-1 record and the Northern District Championship.

Not to be overshadowed by the Varsity, the J.V. fought their way to the top place in the district with a winning season of 4-2-1.

"Rebound!" shrieked the crowd. "Get those hands up!" yelled the captains. "We won!" squeals a happy team member. Shin-splints! Shuttle run!—Seemingly disjointed, blurred ideas, but yet they hold special meaning to the thirty girls who played J.V. and Varsity girls basketball for Falls Church High School.

Placing third in the district and fifth in the county the Varsity finished their season with a winning 8-4 record. Their victorious season was shared by the Junior Varsity who chalked up an identical record of 8-4.

Cindy Farrell easily out jumps her adversary.

Jean Schoellig starts to drive in for a basket.

Softballers Receive Strength From Veterans

Catching fly balls, hitting home runs, stealing bases, winning games were not limited solely to the boy's teams as demonstrated by the girls who played Varsity and Junior Varsity Softball. Brand new jackets, runaway ground ball, first-game jitters were experiences shared by both Varsity and J.V. alike. Improving their skills, learning to slide, wanting to beat the opposition, may seem like small achievements but combining them with team unity and spirit drove the girls onward to a successful season.

From Silent Pep Rallies to Piercing Yells, The Terrible Ten Aims For Victory

Stirring up students' spirit, promoting goodwill, instilling school pride, rebelling against apathy—all these activities, tasks of the Falls Church High School cheerleading squads, groups that never failed in their role to arouse student response.

Bonfires, pep rallies, and locker stickers, were just a few of the methods employed by the girls to get both the teams and the student body in the right mood for the games.

Wrestling, basketball, football, each sport was given all the time and attention the girls could devote.

Popularity, glamour, and prestige, benefits viewed by numerous cheerleader hopefuls were insignificant factors when compared to essentials such as practicing three times a week, maintaining a good scholastic average, and most important bearing the responsibility of representing Falls Church High School.

Debbie Hall prays that the referee will call a first down.

Senior Jaguers Anticipate Commencement In June

Viewing '68-'69 as their last year at Falls Church High School, the senior Jaguers made the most of their final opportunity to be the upper classmen before becoming once again a "lowly freshman" on a distant college campus. Lead by the President Scott Veazey and the other class officers, Cindy Farrell, Vice-President; Bonnie Isom, Secretary; and Laura Kennedy, Treasurer, the class sponsored the usual bake sales and doughnut sales along with the excitement of Sadie Hawkins and several class sock-hops. Frequently, there were worries and frustrations when seniors were waiting for either their college board scores or the announcement that they had been accepted at their chosen college. Although the Seniors cannot boast being the largest class in the school, they can claim that the mark they imprinted in school history is equally as great as any made by their predecessors.

Senior Class Council: Top-Bunny Goodman, Karen Swankowski, Debbie Tipton, Pegi Melick, Sue Russell. Bottom—Joe Walker, Nancy Albertson, Eileen Garvin, Sue Clark, Greg Hughes.

Melinda Magibbendie, Well, this has been a memorable year huh? Don't forget Media, the Halloween party, the football games, the Float, Bon's Church, the Snow-Weekend, all those crazy kids, THE BLIND (DAWG), Shallen, Little Mary,
To and Behold, and the last days of school. BOY
WHAT A BLAST.

Remember, we gotta get together over the summer and get in some classes together next year! Well, I'll see ya around Good luck Always

Bo

Junior Action Felt Throughout School

Summer car washes provide money for the Prom, sponsored by the Junior Class.

The responsibility of the auspicious social event, the Junior-Senior Prom has been placed on the steady shoulders of the Junior Class. The Class of '70 in this aspect was no different from its predecessors and equally as determined to meet the problem head on.

Spaghetti dinners, donut sales, Christmas Dance, dues, candy sales, newspaper drives—the methods were varied but the purpose behind all was the same, money for the prom.

Many months and 100 committee-chairmen later, the Juniors found themselves basking in their victory but their success was short-lived. For just as the problem of the prom was solved, the Juniors were informed that with the possession of their treasured class rings came the responsibility of being Seniors and, of course, plans for the Senior Class gift.

The Junior Class, known for its school-wide participation, contributes the talents of Annette Jorgenson and Susie Short to a fall pep assembly.

Maintaining the spirit of achievement displayed in their successful freshman year, the Sophomore Class headed to the completion of another prosperous school year. The '68-'69 term began with a "whale of a victory" as the spirited group brought back a first place in the Homecoming float competition. In the fall, the class received a boost to their enlarging treasury when they reached quota and racked up more magazine sales than any other class.

Striving to reach the class goal many energetic sophomores lent their culinary talents to the preparation of delicious delicacies for the numerous donut and bake sales. Other fund-raising activities included car washes, a car bash, the dues drive, and a Spaghetti Dinner. The year was terminated by a sockhop in March.

"That Billy Nies sure is a bundle of laughs," chuckles Mary Jane Bell.

Freshmen Strive To Meet New Challenges

While upperclassmen continued in the familiar routine of previous years, freshmen entering Falls Church High School attempted to find a place in the whirling kaleidoscopic pattern of activities and experiences which for them were new and exciting.

At first the newcomers were unsure of the unfamiliar surroundings and often found themselves lost in the expansive maze of halls and among throngs of fellow students. Many freshmen were pleasantly surprised by the wide variety of courses available, although at first they were perhaps a little worried about the heavy homework load.

As the year progressed their eyes were opened to the dazzle of formal dances, the enthusiasm of pep-rallies and the competition of "big-time" sports.

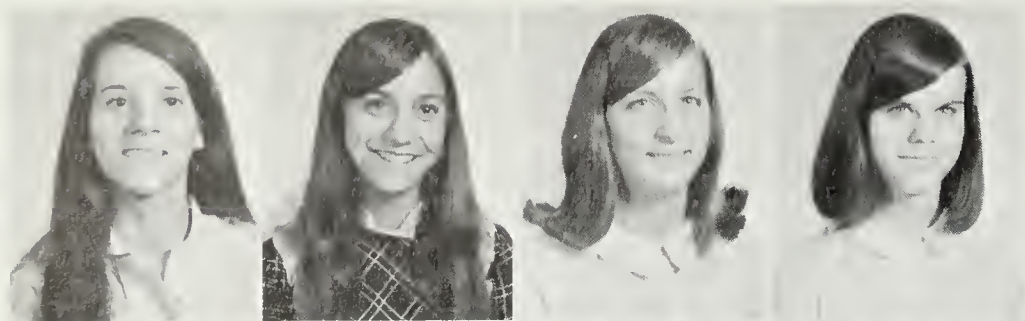

The year could be termed successful when many aspiring underclassmen made a name for themselves through a display of talent in clubs, leadership in school government and responsibility in undertaking class projects.

Hurried lunches...excited photographers...unhappy poses...overlapping space...reluctant patrons and eager ad seekers...the trials and turmoils experienced by yearbook staff members involved in the massive search for those ever-necessary ads. Quarter page...Half page...Full page... appreciation to our supporters.

Ads

To the F.C.H.S. student body and friends of F.C.H.S.:

Production of a yearbook entails the co-operation of many groups and individuals—from our publishing company, Hunter's to the harassed Miss Wilson who has had the misfortune of being ensconced next to the yearbook room.

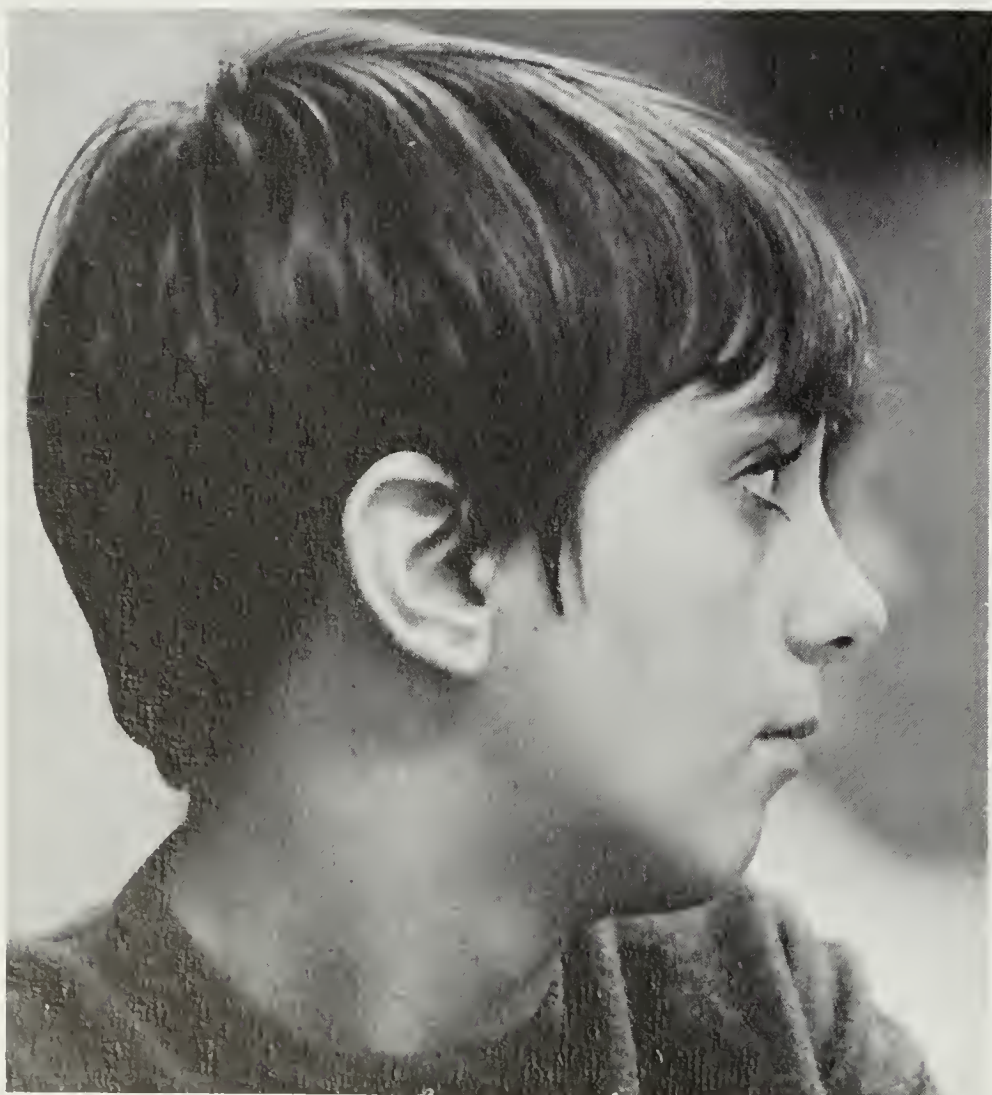

Possibly no one surpassed our head photographer, Gary Lee, in total number of hours accumulated working for the Jaguar. The brow-beaten Gary became a familiar sight at all the school events. As deadlines approached and section editors voraciously demanded quantities of pictures for their respective sections, Gary diligently complied with their requests and still managed to maintain quality.

Thanks are due to—the hard-pressed business managers in the endless collection of money, the homeroom senators who aided them, the teachers who graciously allowed photographers to infiltrate their classes and staff members to work during class time, the advertisers and patrons who contributed their money and good wishes, and to our redoubtable adviser, Miss Betsy Ann Harris, who was able to weather even my erratic editorship.

CONGRATULATIONS!!

You Are Now Entering the COMPUTER AGE - and if your education stops now it will pass-you-by . . .

"Our greatest need in the future will be for information middlemen — those who perform the tasks of information collection, processing, analysis, and distribution; who design the various new applications; and who serve as the interpreters of the needs of the physician, the teacher, the lawyer, and the businessman."

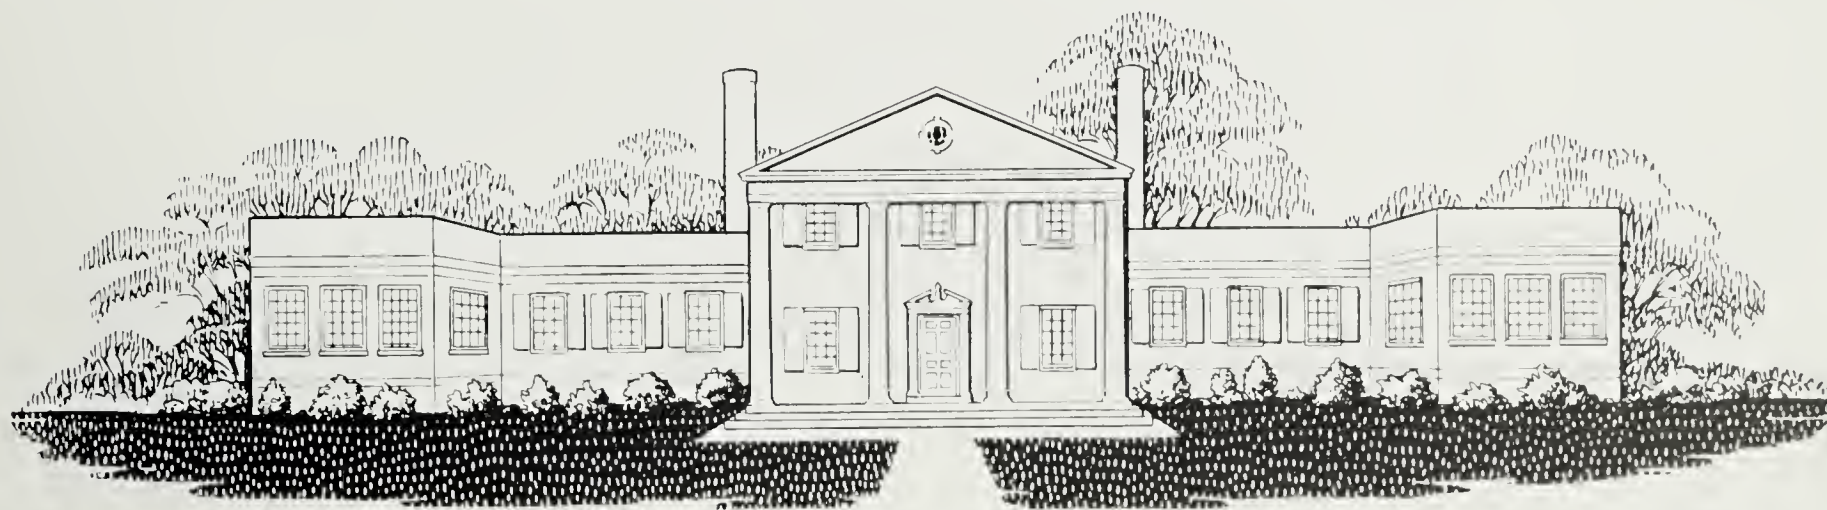

For tens of thousands of years, man's speed of travel was limited to the speed of a running horse. With the advent of the steam engine, the gasoline engine, the jet engine and the rocket engine — in one century we have witnessed the man on horseback conquer space.

Perhaps more dramatic has been the development of the computer. There was no computer industry two decades ago. Today, experts predict that at the present rate of growth, the computer industry will soon surpass the auto industry as the nation's largest. One of the main facets of the computer industry is PEOPLE-WARE. It is this area that will determine the future growth of the industry. The present shortage of adequately trained people is already hampering the growth of this industry.

COMPUTER AGE INSTITUTE

A Private School

8800 Arlington Boulevard

Fairfax, Virginia 22030

Like other fine schools, the Training Center of Computer Age Industries, Computer Age Institute, is situated in an atmosphere conducive to learning. The Fairfax Campus is located on eight rolling, wooded acres just off the Capitol Beltway in beautiful Fairfax County, Virginia.

Quality computer courses for resident students call for modern computer systems. The IBM 360/30 Computer Systems is available for student use on the premises.

Jaguar Trail . . . its opening marked the completion of the new Falls Church High School—a surrounding which finally achieved an aura of familiarity. More than growing accustomed to the surroundings, the members of the F.C.H.S. community became aware of each other . . . of the diverse personalities, of the varied events and activities which comprised this year and gradually worked into a kaleidoscopic pattern—a rapidly shifting view of life at F.C.H.S. in '69.

Dear Me.
I'm so glad we saw a good bit of each other in the fall & I'm gladder that you came caroling with us that night in
Dec. - it proved to be revolutionary, agreed?
I'm sure I'll be seeing wads of you this summer - And next year goes unspoken. This year has been a really ~~big~~ thespian meeting. I hope I'll be seeing you in a sweet & don't hate me too much for Always stay you know who I really love. Someday... going to camp. You see you soon.
well, take care & see you soon.

Luff-Bon Phil. 1:27

MELINDA, MADE

Minister - Congrat on becoming a Teacher - and best of luck in the future - and always remember to "support your local Sherry" We'll see you!
 Big Miss

Minister, I have really been great! I had a wonderful year! You are great! Have a really wonderful summer and best of luck always. Love, Christine Minister, you're known to be for a long time with people. Don't know me, Catherine

What a year this has been! I wish we could have been in alot more of your classes, at least one! I hope next year will be alot better. I wish you alot of luck with what you'll be doing this summer, unless you're doing what I am, Nothing! Be good until next year
 Love, Shauna

Minister, if you don't remember anything else, remember your teacher. Good luck, Debbie Black Minister, it's been a fun year! Best of luck always!

 Love, [Signature]

Minister, I have been great! I had a wonderful year! You are great! Have a really wonderful summer and best of luck always. Love, Christine

Melinda -
I've always disliked the fact that your name is so similar to mine
it has caused me
many embarrassing
moments in the hall
as I answer someone who is addressing you
far behind me.
Don't remember me as being too stupid to change those few answers on the Exam, you rat.
Be a good cheppan.
Melissa

Hi Mel,
I hope you're happy. I miss
you. Love,
Melissa
